

Element/Sub-Element	Goals	Intended Result(s)	Evaluation Method(s)
RESOURCE SHARING
Cooperative Collection Development	Co-Central libraries expand access to adult non-fiction materials through using Central Book Aid (CBA).	Patrons have improved access to physical, non-fiction materials (books, movies, audio, etc.) based on requests.	Collection and circulation statistics
	Co-Central libraries explore new opportunities for cooperative collection development of shared digital collections.	Patrons have improved access to electronic information and downloadable non-fiction materials through the shared collection.
Interlibrary Loan	Co-Central libraries provide residents of the MYLS service area with a variety of materials through sharing resources with all member libraries.	Co-Central libraries act as net lenders, helping to meet the information needs of all member library patrons. Patrons at all MYLS member libraries have access to Co-Central library materials to supplement their home library collections.	Collection and circulation statistics
Digital Collections Access	Co-Central libraries expand system-wide access to non-fiction digital collections and services by utilizing Central Book Aid.	Patrons at all MYLS member libraries have access to shared digital collections.	Collection and circulation statistics
TECHNOLOGY SERVICES
	Mid York Library System centralized computer systems are supported in part by Central Library Development (CLD) funds.	Patrons and member libraries have access to a network and ILS that meets their needs.	Review of ILS usage; member library input
INFORMATION SERVICES		Central Library Development (CLD) funds will be used to support information resources and services.	Usage statistics
	Co-Central libraries share staff expertise and information resources that support reference services that benefit the entire service area.	Patrons throughout the Mid York System have access to information professionals and resources that meet their information needs.
CONTINUING EDUCATION	Co-Central library staff possess professional expertise that enhances library services to member libraries and their patrons.	Co-central library staff participate in professional development opportunities that enhance library services and enable them to share their skills system-wide.	Number of training sessions and attendance; post-session evaluations
COORDINATED SERVICES	Co-Central libraries will provide leadership in cooperative projects, grants, and pilot programs that benefit the entire service area.	Member libraries throughout the MYLS benefit from coordinated projects initiated by the Co-Central libraries.	Program statistics; project assessment